

UChicago Careers in Public Policy and Service

Students with an interest in public and social service careers find the University of Chicago's rigorous liberal arts education and strong interdisciplinary programs to be excellent preparation. Whether they gravitate toward community or international development, education, social service, public policy, or politics, students will find a vast array of opportunities through the UChicago Careers in Public Policy and Service (UCIPPS) program.

Advising

Career Advancement provides the preparation, connections, and opportunities for students to pursue their career goals. Career Advancement has a staff of public policy and service advisers with a wide range of experience in these sectors. These experts advise College students of any major, once they determine they have an interest in a career in public policy or service.

Academic Courses

UCIPPS partners with the School of Social Service Administration, Urban Education Institute, and the Harris School of Public Policy to offer courses that provide an academic framework for examining social issues and concerns of interest to UCIPPS students.

UCIPPS Scholars Program

The UCIPPS Scholars Program is a selective program for fourth-year undergraduates seeking a post-graduation career in public policy and service. During the quarter, students attend bi-weekly job search and professional skills workshops. Scholars receive one-on-one career advising and direct referrals to employers and alumni with professional opportunities.

University of Chicago Public Interest Program

This program places graduating UChicago students in full-time, yearlong fellowships in non-profit, education, or public interest organizations that offer unique training and educational experiences. Students have worked for many top organizations including the Civic Consulting Alliance, Chicago Legal Clinic, and the Illinois State Board of Education.

Workshops and Guest Speakers

Numerous workshops and panels each quarter focus on skill-building and career exploration. Many include training on how to find jobs and internships, connect with alumni and employers, and navigate the government application process. Throughout the year, UCIPPS hosts panel discussions on education, politics, foundations, international affairs, human rights advocacy, direct service, and more. Some past workshops and speakers include:

- Chicago Council on Global Affairs
- CIA
- Taproot Foundation
- ACLU

DAMI OBARO

Planning life after graduation is difficult enough, but in a field with many options like public service, it can seem downright impossible. Luckily UCIPPS was there to help! The support of the counselors and my fellow scholars made a scary process so much easier! I am very grateful."

Special Events

UChicago Careers in Public Policy and Service students have access to enriching opportunities. Past special events have included:

- Entrepreneurship and Social Innovation Competition
- Annual UCIPPS Kick-Off Networking Event

Site Visits

UCIPPS offers quarterly site visits for students to learn about the public interest sector. Past trips include visits to:

- Offices of Senator Richard Durbin
- National Opinion Research Center
- U.S. Department of Labor
- National Immigrant Justice Center

Treks

UChicago Careers in Public Policy and Service students have the opportunity to travel and visit with firms all over the country in groups of 10 to 20 students. Led by advisers with relevant industry knowledge, trek destinations include:

- Washington, DC
- New York, NY
- Springfield, IL
- Chicago

Career & Internship Fairs

Career Advancement hosts two large-scale career fairs on campus each year for students looking for internships or full-time jobs. Many organization representatives conduct interviews with students either during or immediately following career fairs.

On-Campus Recruiting

The On-Campus Recruiting Program brings representatives from many top public sector, non-profit, and social service organizations to campus to interview students for summer internships and full-time opportunities. The UCIPPS advisers help identify internship opportunities and aid students in creating targeted application materials as well as prepare for interviews. Career Advancement hosts hundreds of organizations on campus through its recruiting program and career fairs. Additional organizations recruit via University of Chicago-specific job postings, resulting in thousands of internship and full-time opportunities for students. These encompass a wide range of public service sectors—including public policy, non-profit, government, and international policy and development—in locations across the United States and around the world. The Recruiting Immersion Camp is a two-day intensive workshop designed to build resume-writing, interviewing, and networking skills, as well as bolster self-confidence as students prepare for their job searches. It is open to all students.
